

Rep. Lynda Wilson, R-Vancouver

First elected in 2014, Lynda Wilson brings a wealth of real-world knowledge to the Legislature. Lynda has years of experience in the private sector, a strong commitment to community service and a passion for reform. In addition to graduating with honors from Evergreen High School and attending Clark College, Lynda is a graduate of the Jennifer Dunn Leadership Institute.

Lynda and her husband, Tracy, own DeWils Industries, a third generation manufacturing business serving the United States and Japan. Additionally, Lynda has an extensive background in banking. Through her experiences operating a family-owned business, Lynda has first-hand knowledge of the issues many entrepreneurs face in Washington. She is committed to increasing opportunities in the market and reducing unnecessary regulations that hinder growth.

Growing up on military bases in the United States and Germany while her dad served in the Air Force, Lynda learned early on the importance of service. Whether it was volunteering in her children's schools, or grassroots organizations, Lynda has always lead through service.

She has volunteered with the Southwest Washington Search and Rescue Team, C-Tran Citizen's Advisory Committee, National Federation of Independent Business Leadership Council, Association of Washington Business Government Affairs Committee, and through her business is a sponsor of the Clark County Veteran's Court Board. Lynda is also a past chair of the Clark County Republican Party.

In her first term, Lynda was chosen to serve as an Assistant Whip for the House Republican Caucus. In addition to this leadership role, Lynda serves on the House Transportation Committee and the House Public Safety Committee.

In the summer of 2015, Lynda was appointed to the Joint Administrative Rules Review Committee by Speaker of the House, Frank Chopp.

Lynda and Tracy reside in Vancouver. Together they have three daughters, and one grandson.
